

Class 1d in the kitchen

What would Advent be without delicious biscuits to help fatten us all up a bit? With this in mind 1d went into the kitchen with Ms Huber and Ms Schmidhofer to do some biscuit baking. The wonderful smells coming out of the ovens soon had everyone's mouths watering, especially those of the poor teachers, whose common room is right next door to the kitchen.

Is one of these boys the next Jamie Oliver?

Luckily they were kind enough to let us try some and the general verdict was that they tasted pretty good. (Next time you can leave a big pile of them on my desk, thank you.)

Wow, we never knew washing up was such good fun. Can we do this at home, too?

Look, Mrs B., your son really can do the housework!

Waiting for the timer to ring...

Finished at last!
